We understand that Sandra M. Moore, M.A., founder and principal of Next Step CC, LLC, and the instructor for the “How to Write a Winning College Essay” workshops, does not write the participants’ pieces for them. She offers these workshops to give students the skills and support that can enable them to create well-crafted and compelling college essays. To get the most out of these sessions, students must do the required work, including drafting and editing their essays between workshop sessions. We further understand that she does not promise/guarantee that what they produce will result in admission to particular colleges and universities and that there are no refunds.
